Tribute to Psygnosis, Part 2

Nachdem der erste "Tribute to Psygnosis" Podcast der BitFellas die Musik aus den Amiga-Spielen der Kultfirma behandelte, kämpft sich der zweite Teil in Richtung PC- und PSX-Games vor. Mit Musik aus WipEout, G-Police, Formula 1, Drakan und vielen anderen Titeln ist die Playlist prominent besetzt und bietet für volle zwei Stunden eine Retrospektive der musikalischen Art. Natürlich sind auch dieses Mal wieder einige unveröffentlichte Stücke dabei, beispielsweise aus dem nie fertiggestellten Drakan 2, Assault Rigs 2, sowie einem Prügelspiel namens Damij.

Wir haben auch unser "Making of..." zu den beiden "Tribute to Psygnosis" Episoden um die offizielle Beschreibung, die Downloads und die Track-Liste erweitert.

Episode #158 - Tribute to Psygnosis, Part 2: Racing on top of the PSone

Hello and welcome to part 2 of our journey through the beautiful sound universe of Psygnosis games. We're moving on and crossing the timeline when the boys and girls from Liverpool switched from Amiga to console gaming, especially the PlayStation. For example, they created WipEout, the first new media sensation which made video games interesting to a broader audience.

This episode includes tunes from games which brought Psygnosis fame after their Amiga era has ended and before they lost their name to become Sony Studio Liverpool.

Information about the unreleased music included here:

Assault Rigs 2: "I did write some music for the sequel but the game eventually was dropped." (Stuart Duffield)

Damij - Shoki: "The track 'Shoki' was from a 3D fighting game called 'Damij' (it was almost completed, but was dropped and ended up not being released). The track has some background noise - it was recorded using 8-track tape and hasn't been remastered at all."
(Stuart Duffield)

Drakan: "Here are some unused tunes from Drakan and Drakan 2 which I got kicked off a few months into it..." (Barry Leitch)

BitFellas - there's some owlsome music in the air.
